The TSA National Explosives Detection Canine Program trains and deploys both TSA-led and state and local law enforcement-led canine teams in support of day-to-day activities that protect the transportation domain. TSA trains canine teams to operate in the aviation, multi-modal, maritime, mass transit and cargo environments. Law enforcement officers make up approximately 65 percent of the teams and approximately 35 percent are transportation security inspectors. In November 2018, TSA launched a Third-Party-Canine (3PK9) Program that allows 3PK9 companies to screen air cargo on behalf of other TSA regulated entities.
